

Black and white photos of High Street, Dudley Street and Bull Ring

The Bull Ring, probably in the 1950s.

The Bull Ring, probably in the late 60s or 1970s. Note Lloyds Bank and Clarkes Radio in the Georgian block on the right.

The Clifton, probably in the 1960s when it ceased to be a cinema and became a Bingo Hall.

The Bull Ring around the turn of the 19th/20th centuries, with tram passing through.

Probably 1920s, judging by children's clothing. Sheep and cattle being herded through the Bull Ring.

Probably 1960s judging by the ladies' clothing and the pram. High Street, outside Ron Baker's tailor's shop. Trolleybuses replaced the trams.

The old Crown in High Street Sedgley, before its demolition in the 1960s.

The pub sign in the rubble is all that remained of the old Crown in High Street Sedgley.
